Chief executives at three of the world's biggest companies announced their resignations in just one day.

Head honchos at Mastercard, Walt Disney Co., and Salesforce, which all sit in the top half of the Fortune 500, are stepping aside, leaving many to speculate about the strange confluence of high-profile departures.

Robert Iger, who has helmed Walt Disney Co. since 2005, will retain the role of Executive Chairman through 2021, but will be replaced as CEO by Bob Chapek.

“With the successful launch of Disney’s direct-to-consumer businesses and the integration of Twenty-First Century Fox well underway, I believe this is the optimal time to transition to a new CEO,” Mr. Iger said in a statement released Tuesday.

“I have the utmost confidence in Bob and look forward to working closely with him over the next 22 months as he assumes this new role and delves deeper into Disney’s multifaceted global businesses and operations, while I continue to focus on the Company’s creative endeavors.”

Mastercard’s Ajay Banga will also transition from CEO to Executive Chairman effective Jan. 1, 2021, the company announced.

Banga will be replaced by Chief Product Officer Michael Miebach.

“Mastercard’s announcement came a day after the credit card company warned the coronavirus outbreak could hit its 2020 revenue. The stock traded 1.6% lower in the premarket,” CNBC reported on Tuesday.

Keith Block, who served as co-CEO of top customer-relationship management firm Salesforce, stepped down on Tuesday.

Block will remain as Advisor to the CEO, the company explained in a statement.

3 out of 500 is a tiny fraction of CEO's and it's likely just aging and retirements. Perhaps some did get ripped off, but then we will see a steady flow of them quitting/retiring. Personally I'd like to see the vast majority of them retire as this system is so corrupt you cannot get into those positions unless you're in certain families, or corrupt in to many ways to list.

Cashing in before the collapse?? Has President Trump contracted and localized the manufacturing base and energy enough to stave off disaster here when the Asian markets fold up?? Getting some of the manufacturing back home may be the silver bullet that saves us..

A distinct possibility this situation is now getting extremely crazy and wild within the last couple days now and that stock market is liable to be dragged down.
